Rapid Sales Growth Highlights Lottery's Successful Year

The 2010-2011 Fiscal Year turned out to be one of the best in recent memory for the California Lottery. For the second year in a row, our sales have gone up – way up. Lottery sales ended the year at nearly $3.44 billion, which represents a 13 percent increase from the prior fiscal year's total of $3.04 billion.

While that's a tremendous accomplishment, the most important factor is that we were able to complete our annual mission to earn even more supplemental funds for California schools. We sent nearly $40 million more to schools this year than last year – almost $1.13 billion in FY 2010-2011 versus nearly $1.09 billion in FY 2009-2010.

Schools received more money thanks to a sales increase fueled by strong Scratchers and MEGA Millions sales. The MEGA Millions game was boosted by an award-winning advertising campaign and two jackpots in excess of $300 million. Scratchers sales saw an enormous increase due to the Lottery's ability to control how much money it pays out in prizes, a privilege granted by the signing into law Assembly Bill 142 by Assemblymember Mary Hayashi (D-Hayward) in April 2010 – a measure we anticipate will continue to pay dividends for years to come.

With increased sales and new, higher prize payout games on the market, there are more big winners than ever before. Jim Kitauchi, a resident of the small Central Valley town of Orosi, won a $32 million SuperLotto Plus® jackpot. Judith Tate of San Jose helped us celebrate our 25th anniversary after her name was chosen as a $1 million winner in our anniversary Replay Program drawing, meaning she won her big prize with an original non-winning ticket. But by far, our biggest winner of the year was John Davis of Morro Bay. He laid claim to a $135 million MEGA Millions® jackpot in August 2010.

When talking about the impact the Lottery has on our state, it's easy to think about the schools that receive vital supplemental funding and the winners who experience those life-changing moments, but the Lottery also has a tremendous impact on small businesses all across California through our network of 21,000 retailers.

For instance, when John Davis won the MEGA Millions jackpot, Chuck Harper of Bottle Liquor & Deli was also a big winner. That's because Lottery retailers receive a half of one percent of jackpot-winning tickets sold in their stores. So, for selling that winning ticket to Mr. Davis, Mr. Harper was presented with a check for $675,000 – not bad for a small business owner.

In addition to these items, the 2010-2011 Fiscal Year was a success for the Lottery in other ways.

Our innovative Replay Program reached 1 million registered users in only its second year, and we also surpassed 100 million ticket codes entered into the system. Players know that even if their Scratchers don't win the first time around, they always have a second chance to win big!

We're excited to share our achievements with you. We've come a long way in a short period of time. We're proud to be able to provide more than a billion dollars to education for the 11th consecutive year, but we want to do more. With great new games, promotions, and a responsible business plan, the Lottery is poised to take sales to new highs in 2011-2012.

We will remember the 2010-2011 Fiscal Year as the year the California Lottery became the fastest-growing lottery in the nation. The rest of this report highlights our achievements. We hope you enjoy it.

* As required by law, each year an independent accounting firm audits the California Lottery's financial statements. KPMG LLP conducted an independent audit of the Lottery's annual financial statements and issued an unqualified opinion on those statements as of and for the fiscal year ending June 30, 2011. The State Controller's Office and other independent accounting firms also audit various aspects of the Lottery's operations. For a copy of the audited financial statements, contact the California Lottery Communications Office, 700 North 10th Street, Sacramento, CA 95811. HOW YOUR LOTTERY DOLLAR IS SPENT...

The following graphic breaks down how the Lottery spends the more than $3 billion that it brings in every year.

* Please note that in 2010, AB 142 changed the Lottery Act to require the Lottery to return at least 87% of its revenues to the public in prizes and public education. This allows the Lottery greater flexibility to increase sales and enhance our contributions to California's public schools and colleges by raising prize payouts. For more information about AB 142, go to page 5 of this report.

Happy 25th Birthday, California Lottery!

In 2011 the California Lottery turned 25 years old, and as a way to say thank you to our customers we celebrated our birthday by doing what we do best – we created another millionaire!

In June we launched a new Scratchers game called Millions in Cash. This $5 game had 25 $1 million prizes – one for each year of the Lottery’s existence – and a bonus $1 million second chance draw for non-winning tickets entered into the Lottery’s Replay Program.

In honor of our 25th anniversary, we planned to hold a special second chance drawing around the actual date of the anniversary – October 3. The winner of that drawing would be the “surprise” winner of a $1 million prize.

Judith Tate, a retiree from San Jose, became the winner of our $1 million anniversary prize! Tate was informed that she won a prize and we told her that she was invited to a reception held in honor of all our anniversary prize winners. When she arrived at Ron’s Liquor store in San Jose, she learned that she was in fact the only winner and she was promptly handed a large check for $1 million. A party was then held at the retail location where she originally bought her non-winning ticket that turned her into a million dollar retiree. Tate even helped us cut the anniversary cake.

“I was so happy, I was elated. I felt all kinds of emotions,” Tate said of her experience in becoming the Lottery’s 1,960th millionaire since operations began in 1985.

But the fun didn’t stop there! Our anniversary celebration continued with the awarding of a $25,000 prize to another lucky player who entered her non-winning ticket in the Replay Program.

Regina Aguirre of Winnetka, a self-employed bookkeeper, was surprised when Lottery officials informed her how much she had won. Upon hearing she was the winner of a $25,000 prize, Aguirre said: “My mom says my face turned totally red. I thought I had won maybe $1,000. People really do win the Lottery. I’m proof of that!”

Of course the real winners of all our games are California schools. In 25 years of operation, the Lottery has contributed more than $23 billion in supplemental funds that have directly impacted millions of kids all across the state. Here’s to many more years to come!

Supporting Education Beyond Supplemental Funding

Since its inception in 1985, the California Lottery has taken extra steps in order to fulfill our mission of supporting education. This past year, the Lottery's sponsorship of educational programs came at a special time – the celebration of the California Lottery's 25th anniversary.

For the second year in a row, the Lottery sponsored a series of regional spelling bees for local elementary and middle school students all across the state. Last year, the Lottery sponsored 13 spelling bees, and our programs were even bigger this year with 14 spelling bees and nearly 1,000 eager spellers participating.

The winners of these spelling bees represented California in the Scripps National Spelling Bee, which was held on June 1-2, 2011 in Washington D.C. The 14 winners received a $4,000 sponsorship from the California Lottery to pay expenses for the winner and a parent to attend and participate in the National Spelling Bee. Spellers who placed 2nd through 10th also received prizes and/or trophies.

In addition to the spelling bees, the Lottery also branched out to find other ways to support students around the state. The Lottery worked with three newspapers – The Sacramento Bee, The Orange County Register and The San Francisco Chronicle – to sponsor the Newspaper in Education program. Each of the three newspapers published financial literacy educational materials that were then emailed to teachers to be used in their classrooms. The Lottery also sponsored a series of financial literacy seminars in the Sacramento area for local teens.

And while these programs all benefit California students, the Lottery also made sure to find ways to honor those who educate our children every day – our teachers.

This year, the Lottery began a partnership with Sacramento's News 10 to sponsor its Teacher of the Month program, which honors an outstanding teacher in the Sacramento area each month.

The Lottery also took time to honor a special Southern California educator, Ventura County Teacher of the Year Kristine Guzman. Guzman, who teaches 2nd grade at Will Rogers Elementary School, was rewarded for a job well done with a full day of fun at the Ventura County Fair, as well as a Senate Resolution provided by State Senator Tony Strickland of Thousand Oaks.

"The rewards of teaching are priceless," said Guzman, in describing what drives her to be a great teacher. "To experience that moment in the classroom when everything comes together just right, to see the face of a student light up when they realize their own potential, to receive a hug of pure gratitude – you can't buy these."

For 25 years, the Lottery has been supporting California educational efforts by providing supplemental income to schools. This year the Lottery contributed $1.1 billion to California schools.

Learn More About Assembly Bill 142

In the first full year since the signing of Assembly Bill 142, a measure which gave the California Lottery the ability to maximize supplemental funding for California schools, the measure is already paying dividends.

As you can see in the rundown of our financial highlights for Fiscal Year 2010-2011, Lottery sales increased by nearly $400 million that year, providing an additional $40 million to public education. In the more than 25 years the Lottery has been in business, it has now contributed more than $24 billion to California schools.

In addition, AB 142 mandated that only 13 percent of every dollar the Lottery earns be spent on administrative expenses. This year, the Lottery was able to run even more efficiently, using only 12.5 percent of those Administrative funds, allowing us to send the balance to public schools.

For 25 years, the Lottery has been supporting California educational efforts by providing supplemental income to schools. This year the Lottery contributed $1.1 billion to California schools.

Fiscal Year Highlighted by Large Jackpots, Bigger Winners

This year saw both a $312 million and a $355 million MEGA Millions jackpot, and while neither of those jackpots was won in California, many players received new-found wealth playing Lottery games.

The winner of the largest jackpot this year was John Davis, who won a $135 million MEGA Millions jackpot in August of 2010. Davis, who bought his ticket in Morro Bay, was the winner of the 16th MEGA Millions jackpot to be sold in California since the game began. Bottle Liquor, the retailer who sold Davis his winning ticket, received a bonus of $665,000.

First they worked together, and then they won together...big! Zahra Vasseghi and Thu Thao Truong had been teaming up to play MEGA Millions and SuperLotto Plus for six months and their partnership didn't take long to pay off. The pair, who work at an independent telephone company, won a $64 million MEGA Millions jackpot and said for now they plan to keep working. The owner of Smoke N' Stuff, where they bought their ticket, received a bonus of $320,000.

Another player who struck it rich was Ronnie Orender, a now-retired truck driver who bought his $51 million MEGA Millions jackpot-winning ticket in Bakersfield. He said he planned to use his prize to take care of his parents and said, "It's hard for us to believe, but we're just going to do everything we can to enjoy it as much as possible." He bought his ticket at Stuarts Oak Street Mobil, and that retailer received a bonus of $255,000 for selling the winning ticket.

SuperLotto Plus also saw its share of winners. Jim Kitauchi lives in the very small town of Orosi, and that's where he bought the SuperLotto Plus ticket that won him a $32 million jackpot. He has no plans to move from his beloved town, but he did plan to quit his job as a quality control inspector to pursue his other passions, including opening his own restoration shop for classic cars. The retailer, who sold the jackpot-winning ticket, Kwik Korn, will receive a bonus of $160,000 for selling the big winner.

In all, the Lottery paid out more than $1.9 billion in prizes during the 2010-2011 Fiscal Year.

A group of 11 employees from the Montebello Unified School District had been playing the Lottery together for nearly two years. The group claimed a $12 million SuperLotto Plus jackpot, but they only checked their numbers after hearing that a winning ticket had been sold at the retailer where they bought their tickets, a 7-Eleven location in Whittier. The winning retailer received a $60,000 bonus for making that winning sale. “Members of the group had heard about a winning ticket being sold in Whittier so they were already assembled when I returned to confirm the win,” said group spokesman Ramone Solis. “We all jumped around the office screaming and celebrating!”

Brian McMahon, a prop maker for the entertainment industry, got a chance to live the kind of dream that is often featured in Hollywood films after claiming a $12 million SuperLotto Plus jackpot.

Besides buying a new home and truck, McMahon said he plans to use the money to have a “great life.”

In all, the Lottery paid out more than $1.9 billion in prizes during the 2010-2011 Fiscal Year. We think you’ll agree that it was quite a year to be a Lottery player!

Supporting Small Businesses

At the same time the California Lottery earns money for schools by selling entertainment products, we also contribute to the economic well-being of communities all across California.

During our 25 years in operation, the Lottery has paid out nearly $4 billion in commissions and bonuses to stores in every part of our diverse state, from large chain stores like CVS and 7-Eleven to small mom-and-pop stores. These commissions help stores employ thousands of people.

In the past year, the Lottery presented several retailers with large checks at the same time our big winners were receiving theirs. In August 2010 when John Davis of Morro Bay won a $135 million MEGA Millions jackpot prize, Chuck Harper of Bottle Liquor and Deli received a whopping $675,000 just for selling John Davis the winning ticket.

In the small Central Valley town of Orosi (population 8,700), Kwik Korner Market earned a cool $160,000 bonus in February 2011 after the market sold a $32 million SuperLotto Plus jackpot-winning ticket to Jim Kitauchi.

Lottery retailers also earned bonuses of $5,000 and $10,000, respectively, every time they sell a top prize-winning Millions in Cash or Set for Life Scratchers ticket.

This year the Lottery also concluded an innovative retailer makeover program, where one lucky retailer in each district area received a makeover by Lottery staff.

The process included reviewing equipment placement, cleaning the store for new point-of-sale items, and placement of flags and banners. The winning retailer, South Grove Liquor of Orange County, saw its sales increase by 66 percent!

And lastly, any mention of the Lottery's impact on small businesses wouldn't be complete without mentioning our yearly holiday snow globe tour. Each holiday season, the Lottery snow globe travels to retail locations all across the state. At each stop, people crowd the local retailer for their chance to buy $20 in Lottery products so they can step into the snow globe and win even more prizes, making these events, much like the fiscal year that it was, quite profitable for our retailers.

1 Retailers win too! Chuck Harper of Bottle Liquor and Deli in Morro Bay with his retailer bonus of $675,000.

2 A holiday tradition continues! The Lottery's Snow Globe never fails to excite at its stops at retail locations across California.

Lottery's Corporate Social Responsibility Efforts Focus on Problem Gambling Awareness

The California Lottery has made a big commitment to Corporate Social Responsibility. One of our most important priorities is maintaining our players' trust through responsible play and integrity.

Our primary mission at the Lottery is to provide supplemental funding for California school budgets, but we are also committed to supporting local communities and leading the way in consumer protection. One way we do that is to always encourage our players to play responsibly and within their means.

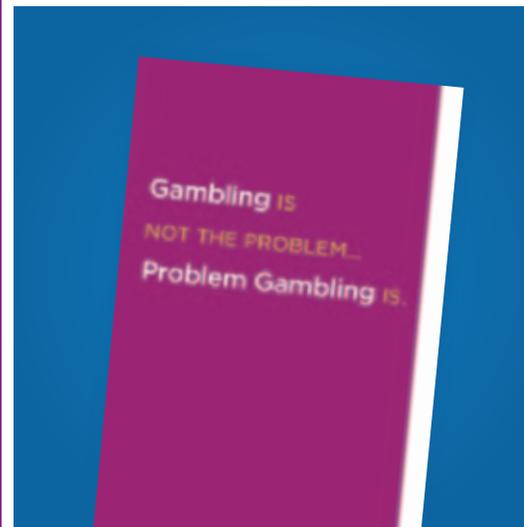

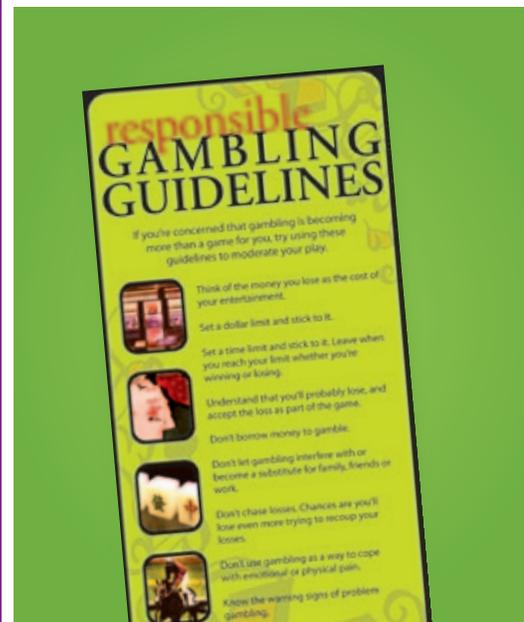

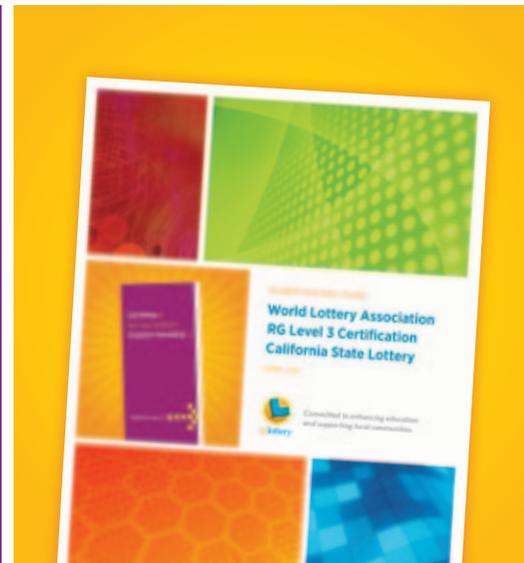

This year, the Lottery once again joined other organizations in recognizing the week of March 6, 2011, as the 9th Annual California Problem Gambling Awareness Week. The goal of the week was to educate and raise public awareness that problem gambling affects people from all segments of society, and it can negatively influence the problem gambler's family, friends, employer and community.

The Lottery participates in National Problem Gambling Awareness Week annually with statewide communications that promote the 1-800-GAMBLER Hotline on all draw game tickets, Hot Spot monitors and electronic point of sale devices. Additionally, each year the Lottery website has a special banner to connect visitors to the Office of Problem Gambling website.

This year, the Lottery also produced and distributed a dozen new television public service announcements in six languages promoting the 1-800-GAMBLER Hotline. The PSAs, done in coordination with the Office of Problem Gambling, aired throughout the state during Problem Gambling Awareness Week and continued airing through the year.

We are also proud to announce that the California Lottery was granted a Level 3 Certification from the World Lottery Association for our efforts in problem gambling and Corporate Social Responsibility.

Lottery Promotions Give Players the Chance to Win More!

It's been over two years since the California Lottery first unveiled its Replay Program, and since then the program has grown to more than one million registered users. This innovative web-based program gives players a second chance to win cash and prizes by entering their non-winning Scratchers tickets on the Lottery's Replay website at replay.calottery.com.

Over the past year the Lottery awarded over $4.5 million in Replay cash prizes, including the largest Replay prize awarded since the program began in 2009 – a $2 million prize won by Jean Bowman of Apple Valley.

Bowman won his prize by entering his non-winning ticket code from the Lottery's $2 Million Extravaganza Scratchers game. When Bowman was notified that he had won $2 million off of a non-winning ticket, the Apple Valley custodian said he was in disbelief – "I thought it was a crank call," he said. "I thought it was too good to be true!"

In addition to cash prizes, the Replay Program continues to attract players by offering fun and unique prizes. In the fall of 2010, the California Lottery and all three California pro football franchises teamed up for the first time in history to produce each team's Scratchers tickets. These tickets not only offered players the chance to win cash, but also football-themed prizes such as season tickets, luxury suites, autographed merchandise and a trip to the 2011 pro football draft in New York.

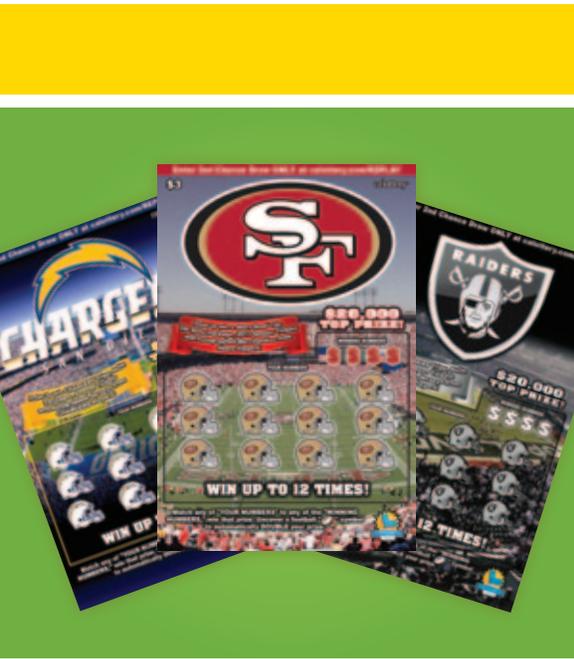

Three California pro football teams were featured on the Scratchers: the San Francisco 49ers, Oakland Raiders, and San Diego Chargers. Fans entered in their non-winning tickets at an interactive website where they could experience the site's many interactive features, including playing the Field Goal Frenzy game, uploading their fanatic photo, trying their hand at face painting and testing their knowledge with team trivia.

The site also kept a running tally of how many fans entered tickets with each team's logo on them. By the end of the promotion the Raiders ran away from the competition with 279,759 ticket code entries. The 49ers were next with 203,759 and the Chargers right behind them with 179,493. In total, the promotion proved to be a huge success with over 600,000 Replay codes entered and nearly 200 football fans awarded with exclusive football-themed prizes.

With the New Year came another first-time partnership. In 2011, the California Lottery and Viejas Casino announced a ground-breaking exclusive partnership to provide an exciting new link between its MEGA Millions lottery game and related promotions at Viejas Casino. This agreement marked the first time the California Lottery has partnered with a casino in the state, and it provided Lottery players new ways to win at the Viejas Casino and gave Viejas Casino guests new opportunities to win the Lottery.

This promotion, called "Mega 5 Bonus," gave players who purchased at least $5 worth of MEGA Millions tickets the chance to play an online entry coupon for a "second chance drawing" held by the Lottery. Players could also bring the coupon to Viejas Casino to receive a free Scratchers ticket, entries into the casino's weekly $15,000 Mega Money drawings, and a chance at over 22,000 prizes, including $500 cash, an iPod Shuffle, and additional Lottery tickets.

But it wasn't just Viejas Casino patrons who got to experience the fun and excitement of Mega Millions. The Lottery also brought the MEGA Millions game to malls throughout California. In Mega Millions Mania, participants lined up for the chance to step up to the MEGA Millions machine and win California Lottery gift cards, free MEGA Millions tickets and other great prizes. And best of all, the event was free!

The California Lottery is looking forward to continuing the Replay Program in the coming year and offering players even more opportunities to win cash and unique prizes.

Leading the Way in Consumer Protection

Integrity, fairness and consumer protection make up the foundation upon which the California Lottery is built. The Lottery's Security/Law Enforcement Division (SLED) is charged with ensuring we maintain our commitment to transparency and success. So, how do we measure our success and the role of our vital security department? Well, it's actually very simple; we look at the results.

In July 2010, the California Lottery announced that its investigators, in cooperation with Primm Resort security staff, helped gather evidence that led to the arrest of a 61-year-old woman accused of embezzling $621,000 worth of Lottery products from a major Lottery retailer.

Based on evidence gathered by investigators from SLED, the San Bernardino County District Attorney's Office issued an arrest warrant for Peggy Blomstedt, former Primm Lottery store manager. She was accused of stealing Lottery products while working for the Primm Resort, located at Interstate 15 at State Line, Nipton, California.

In September 2010, Lottery investigators were again on the case. They arrested two people in relation to the theft of a $20,000 winning Lottery ticket at a Stockton retail location.

The Lottery, working in conjunction with Alcoholic Beverage Control investigators, arrested a Waterloo Food & Fuel store clerk for attempting to steal a winning Lottery ticket. Another woman was also arrested for falsely claiming to be the owner of that same winning ticket.

In this operation, an undercover investigator posed as a customer and handed the clerk – Roberta Borja de Charco – a decoy winning ticket and asked if it was a winner.

The clerk told the investigator that their ticket was not a winner. A claim on the ticket was later submitted by her niece, who claimed she had purchased the winning ticket at another store in Stockton. Borja de Charco claimed she bought and scratched the ticket herself.

Both suspects face felony charges, including attempted grand theft and perjury. The punishment includes possible fines and incarceration in state prison.

The Lottery's consumer protection efforts have gained national publicity and are well documented with multiple features on Dateline NBC. The shows feature undercover agents posing as customers who ask the retailer to check a winning ticket for them. The majority of our retailers and their employees are honest and very helpful.

For the very few retailers and employees who were not honest, Lottery investigators, with the help of other law enforcement agencies, build a case against the perpetrators and they are prosecuted by local district attorney offices.

The local and national attention we receive from investigations like these help deter future Lottery crimes, especially in areas targeted by our operations.

In short, the California Lottery has one of the largest and most effective security forces of any lottery in the nation. Their mission, written in statute, says that they will promote and ensure the integrity, security, honesty, and fairness of the operation and administration of the Lottery. That way, you, our valued customers, can feel confident in playing our games, and you realize that policies are in place to protect you while you enjoy the California Lottery.

The local and national attention we receive from investigations like these help deter future Lottery crimes, especially in areas targeted by our operations.
